Connecting Camps & Churches

One Ministry, Two Camps

God continues to show up for camp ministry. As churches found ways forward in 2022, so did your ministries of Christian camping at Covenant Harbor and Covenant Point Bible camps. We reported to you in 2020 and 2021 our many pandemic challenges, when we experienced change, adjustment, loss and uncertainty. In 2022, we weathered those ongoing effects, in addition to new and pressing trials. But in God's mercy, the later months of the year unfolded in ways that brought healing and hope.

Thank you for standing with us, praying for us and believing in us. You demonstrated that "...God's love has been poured into our hearts through the Holy Spirit..." (Rom. 5:5) as you came alongside us, living the hope we have in Christ. Thanks to those Central Conference churches that continued their financial support of Harbor Point Ministries, which stewards the camps on your behalf. Through Harbor Point Ministries, churches equip their camps through united governance, coordination and collaboration, camp-church relationships, connections with conference leadership and embracing the value of One Ministry, Two Camps.

Thank you!

Executive Director

A Place for Renewal

“Mom, this is my true self,” said the young girl. “I’m remembering who I really am. I’ve felt so clogged up.” This mom and daughter attended Covenant Harbor’s Moms & Daughters retreat in spring 2022. Like so many other children, youth and adults who came to camp in 2022, they found hope and renewal as they were drawn away from their routines and into a transforming experience with Jesus.

We are thankful for the many ways God showed up in 2022 as we continued to navigate lingering pandemic uncertainty. Guest groups were slow to return in the winter and spring, inflation emerged and significant challenges in hiring summer staff tested us. Yet through those months, we rehired many year-round staff positions that had been vacant after the pandemic, celebrated 75 years of ministry, launched construction on two new lodges, achieved re-accreditation with the American Camp Association, and through creativity and perseverance, served thousands of summer youth campers.

As fall approached, churches and pastors came for retreats and guest groups began to return. Our financial situation was moving in the right direction. 2023 looked more promising. Through it all, you stayed with us. Thank you for your partnership and support. We are deeply grateful!

Eric Anderson
Executive Director

Stories of Hope, 2022

"I want to say thank you for how you cared for my daughter who worked as a counselor this past summer. She was transformed in a matter of two months. She literally matured two years in two months. We were very proud of her and extremely thankful for Harbor. She is planning on returning this summer. This is huge and an answer to prayer."

-Covenant Pastor and Summer Staff Parent

Covenant Harbor's summer staff work hard to make meaningful memories that last a lifetime as they love kids and share Jesus with campers.

"God speaks in many ways. Nature is one of them. He spoke loudly this weekend through the peace, beauty and tranquility of the land. My soul needed rest and peace; Covenant Harbor provided the safe space for that to happen."

-Bethesda Covenant Fall Retreat Participant

Covenant Harbor Highlights

Covenant Harbor celebrated its 75th anniversary on a drizzly, fall-like day on August 14, 2022, with approximately 500 guests on camp grounds. The day included worship in the big tent, a cookout on the front lawn, swimming (brrr!), adventure activities, tours of camp and signing the 75th anniversary banner (pictured above).

While Covenant Harbor continues to navigate evolving guest group rhythms in this post-pandemic world, there is no doubt that Jesus is busy transforming lives in this holy place, and for that we celebrate and give thanks to God.

"My life has been blessed by your ongoing hospitality as I have used your ministry to learn how to more faithfully rest in the Lord. We praise God for you. We have used your space to further disciple our men, pastors from other churches and our own elders." -Fellowship Life Bible Church Retreat Participant

Covenant Harbor Challenges

Finding enough qualified summer staff to love kids and share Jesus remained (and remains) Covenant Harbor's number one challenge, even with recruiting counselors before they departed for home at the end of summer 2022. Not having enough summer staff means that hundreds of campers remained (and remain) on wait lists and hired staff are stretched thin, affecting their physical, mental and spiritual well-being. An Employee Wage Grant and Assistance Fund started in 2021 has helped incentivize hiring and enabled more young adults say yes to working at camp; however, as an industry, camp counselor salaries are lower than other potential summer jobs.

Camper mental health and related social-emotional issues have emerged as a post-pandemic challenge, which add layers of responsibility and accompanying stress to our young adult summer staff. In the fall of 2022, Covenant Harbor's Youth Ministry team proactively addressed these concerns by hiring long-time staffer and school social worker Bobby Becker (pictured above) to a newly created summer coordinator role. Becker will oversee the weekly volunteer Community Care Workers, who provide emotional, social and physical support for campers, parents and staff.

Another casualty of the pandemic is the maximum use of Covenant Harbor's Snake Road Adventure Center. Over the past two years, many schools that previously booked overnight outdoor education trips have downsized to day trips, and schools that brought groups for the day have eliminated field trips altogether. Overall, school transportation shortages and reduced budgets appear to be limiting off-site learning opportunities. Now, staff are deploying creative marketing strategies to re-engage previous groups and attract new ones.

Covenant Harbor: The Hope Ahead in 2023

At their April 15, 2023, meeting, the Harbor Point Ministries Board of Directors toured Covenant Harbor's new lodges, called the Twins, and prayed over them. The Twins official dedication and celebration is Sunday, July 30, at Covenant Harbor, immediately following Summer Sunday worship. 2023 summer staff will be the first to stay in the new lodges during training, and the first campers will stay in the Twins beginning in June. Covenant Harbor is grateful to all who have given financially and prayerfully to make this vision come to life.

For summer 2023, the Youth Ministry team has purchased a cabin devotional curriculum for counselors to use with their campers. This resource will encourage and equip staff, allowing them to more readily engage in spiritual conversations with their campers.

Summer Sundays return to Covenant Harbor in 2023 in partnership with Anchor Covenant Church, camp's Lake Geneva neighbor. Anchor will lead worship each week, with Anchor's pastor, Melissa Wall, preaching four Sundays and other ECC Central Conference pastors covering the remaining four weeks. Guests are welcome to bring a picnic lunch to enjoy on the front lawn. The waterfront will be open for at least an hour each Sunday afternoon.

In December 2022, Covenant Harbor was notified that the camp would receive a significant bequest from the estate of Jean Cagwin (pictured above with her husband Harlow). Jean grew up in the ECC and was a camper at Covenant Harbor in her childhood, returning later as a youth group chaperone. Although she had limited interaction with the camp in her later years, she included the camp in her estate as a way of blessing this place that helped shape her faith. We give thanks for her generous spirit that created an enduring legacy.

A Place of Wholeness

"I pray to stop feeling out of place in the world," wrote a senior high student who attended a One Life retreat.

"I pray to stop feeling lost in life," wrote another, who added, "Help me to feel whole."

Through much of 2022, Covenant Point realized its mission by wrapping campers and guests in warmth, care and welcome, addressing mental health effects of the pandemic. Winter, spring and summer, we pressed through challenges as health concerns lingered, staffing questions hovered and a return to "normal" seemed elusive. Yet in hope, ministry progressed.

We achieved re-accreditation with the American Camp Association, which reassures campers and guests of our safety and quality. We brought back our Chicago-to-camp charter bus for summer campers, developed a master plan for our site and began to dream about new projects. Dustin Johnson, associate director, took a well-earned sabbatical after 10 years of service. In the fall, Anders Ahlberg joined our team as operations manager, and Jake Jacott stepped on board as a full-time intern. We ended the year in good shape financially, thanks to solid program registrations and generous friends. We are grateful for your partnership in it all!

Thank you!
Erik Strom, Executive Director

Meet Covenant Point

Covenant Point Bible Camp's 76 acres are nestled on a small lake in a tranquil, Northwoods setting in Michigan's Upper Peninsula. ### Mission

Covenant Point exists to present campers with the claims of Jesus Christ and encourage them in their next step of faith.

- Summer Family Campers

Family Camp programs, including ASD (Autism Spectrum Disorder) Family Camp, are the best vacation! Home cooked meals, free time, intergenerational worship and room set them apart.

Stories of Hope, 2022

"A camper in my cabin was very interested in how powerful God is. He prayed in our cabin for the first time."

- Summer youth counselor

Winter programs, including Christmas Camp and One Life youth retreats, take advantage of Covenant Point's snowy landscape, ski trails and frozen lake for broomball, tubing, rest and active fun.

Covenant Point Highlights

Covenant Point's master plan was developed in 2022. This plan provides a general direction for site-wide and facility improvements in the years ahead, with room for changes and adjustments as programs, ongoing needs, costs and resources are determined. The general plan includes a new entrance to the camp (4), a relocated maintenance building (3), a larger dining hall and new kitchen (14), new office building (20) and additional housing. Other hoped-for improvements include improved pathways, remodeled exteriors of some buildings and new recreation options in the camp's "Back Forty."

In 2022, Covenant Point's charter bus returned after the camp paused the service during the pandemic. The bus departs from the north side of Chicago on the first day of summer youth camp programs and stops in Elgin, Rockford and Madison, WI. Trained counselors ride with campers, providing supervision and creating fun. On the last day of camp, the bus reverses its route to return campers safely home.

Covenant Point Challenges

Covenant Point navigated concerns around camper mental health and well-being in 2022, and those concerns continue. Last summer, staff supported campers by offering more quiet time, decreasing the competitive nature of some games and providing one-on-one support. During the ASD (Autism Spectrum Disorder) Family Camp, Lauren and Lucas Karr and their family (pictured left) stepped in to support staff training in issues related to trauma and de-escalation. They also provided specific training on the needs of people with autism. Additionally, the family donated three backpacks filled with tools children could use when they needed a break. Staff used these backpacks all summer. ASD family campers pay only $200 for their week-long experience. Covenant Point's annual triathlon fundraiser covers the remaining costs.

2022 was a year of regaining program enrollments, returning to church visits, reaching out to churches of color and walking with churches as they sought momentum. Covenant Point's annual men's retreat is one program that maintained steady participation. This year, Rev. Paul Robinson, executive minister of Love Mercy Do Justice, was the speaker.

While Associate Director Dustin Johnson was on sabbatical in summer 2022, Cortney Tomzack, former summer staff member and camp speaker, stepped in as interim associate director to lead Covenant Point's summer program. Her background in Christian camping and youth ministry, as well as her thoughtful leadership, fostered a vibrant season of ministry.

Ray Marth, former Covenant Point Triathlon director and longtime volunteer, served as the maintenance coordinator in summers 2021 and 2022. As a teacher, Ray gave his summers to camp, lending a much-appreciated hand during a time of transition in the maintenance department.

Covenant Point: The Hope Ahead in 2023

1 SOUTH ELEVATION
Scale: 1/8" = 1'-0"

A new lodge with 24 beds is slated for a construction launch at Covenant Point this fall. The lodge is modeled after Aspen and Birch lodges, which will be remodeled, including the addition of front porches, as part of the project. The cabin called Tall Trees will be removed to make room for the new lodge. The lodge will include two cabins, each with 12 bunk beds and its own bathroom, a common lounge and a front porch. It will be ADA compliant. Announcements about the fundraising campaign and construction schedule are forthcoming. Stay tuned!

Covenant Point's Silent Directed Retreats provide a space apart for rest, reflection and deep encounters with God. The popular program has been expanded to include two, two-night options and a four-night option. Each session includes a team of pastors who lead worship and offer personal spiritual direction, as well. Contemplative music, good food, private accommodations and natural beauty are an integral part of each retreat.

Changes in the labor market are requiring creative responses to recruiting and retaining summer staff. Covenant Point continues to look for a few more staff members for this coming summer. Need-based wage grants and other financial assistance and incentives are available to applicants. Thank you for encouraging the young people in your congregation and community to check out cpbc.com to learn more.
